Thrills Court;
Is False Alarm

"If I were going to bet," said Mr. Dooling, "which I am not, I would wager that Nicky does not come in today. Mr. Topper's information is interesting, if true."

The witching hour of 4:10 o'clock came, and with it a taxicab rolled up to the main entrance of the building. "Here he comes!" somebody shouted, and the expectant crowd crushed through the big doors and coard down the front steps. Some one cheered hysterically as the taxicab door alone over the head of inspector Henry.

Out of the cab there stepped a short,

If Mr. Topper had announced that the Kaiser and District Attorney Swann were to engage in a catch-as-catch-can wood sawing bee in the main rotunda of the Criminal Courts Building he could not have created more unfettered agitation and emotional excitment than he did when he proclaimed the coming of Arnstein.

The detectives met each train as it came in. A detachment of the loft squad men was sent to Manhattan Transfer, two miles out on the Jersey side, where they boarded the incoming trains and searched the condens. Each man carried a Rogues' Gallery photograph of Arnstein.

Nicky is said to be stopping at some quiet hotel. He is reported to be ill and to have shaved off his mustache.

The man in the case remained unidentified in the hearing before Magistrate Norris. It was learned yesterday that this testimony was read before the grand jury before it returned the indictment sgainst Commissioner Porter.

The indictment against Porter reads part as follows:

"Well knowing his duty and intending as such public officer to prostitute and betray his said office, he did wilfully and unlawfully wholly fail, neglect and omit to perform the said duty, so enjoined lupon him by the laws of the State of New York and rules and regulations of the Police Department, in that he did then and there wilfully fail, refuse and neglect to arrest and apprehend the said Jane Doe upon the charge of having committed the act and crime aforesaid, and failed, refused and neglect then and there to direct and command the said Hilbert Wheelwright and Fred Sorger, and each of them, so being patrolmen aforesaid, to arrest, and apprehend the said Jane Doe upon the charge of having committed the act and crime aforesaid.

Jane Doe upon the charge of having committed the act and crime aforesaid.

"But, on the contrary, he, the said defendant, wilfully and knowingly did then and there direct and command the said Hilbert Wheelwright and Fred Sorger, and each of them, so being such patrolmen aforesaid, in the violation of their said duty, not to arrest and apprehend the said Jane Doe upon the charge of having committed the said act and crime and to suffer and permit her to go free, against the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace of the people of the State of New York and their dignity." If found guilty on this indictment, Assistant District Attoracy Smith said yesterday, Porter is liable to a punishment of a fine and three years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

The news of the indictment of Commissioner Porter came as a surprise to most persons at Police Headquarters. Commissioner Enright, when approached on the matter, sent out word that he had nothing to say.

Porten became connected with police affairs about nine years ago, when on June 5, 1911, he was appointed secretary to First Deputy Police Commissioner Douglas I. McKay. He resigned this post a few months later. On January 5, 1918, Porter was named secretary to Commissioner Enright. On November 7, 1918, he was named a Special Deputy Police Commissioner and on February 7, 1919, he was named Third Deputy Police Commissioner, succeeding John W. Goff jr., who resigned.

Near Clash in Court

Assistant District Attorney War-asse called for Frederick Solomon, a hassicalled for Frederick Solomon, a prospective witness for the defense, yesterday during the trial of Jesse Walker, nineteen years old, on a murder charge in the Brooklyn Supreme Court. Detective Henry Oswald went into the corridor to get him and the next moment the youth came hurtling through the door, almost falling flat. "That's a contemptible way to handle a boy and characteristic of you," declared Daniel J. Griffin, Walker's attorney, addressing the dectective. Oswald said that he had not meant to give Solomon so hard a push, but the detective and the attorney appeared to be on the verge of a fist fight over the incident when the court attendants intervened.

Walker is alleged to be one of several youths who killed Samuel Wolcheck in his store, at 208 Wyckoff Ave-

Deacon, of Boston, sister of Princess Radziwill, was awarded a verdict of 5500 (naminally $2,500) and costs against "The Daily Graphic" in court here to-day as damages for the publication of a libellous article by the newspaper January 1. It appeared during the trial of the case, in the Lord where her name was frequently coupled with that of the Crown Prince."

The owners of "The Daily Graphic" made a formal statement that there was absolutely no foundation for the article. Miss Deacon's counsel declares the only time she ever met the German Crown Prince was while she was

How Union Labor Feels Toward the "Red" Agitators

For months editorials from city and country papers alike have warned us of the danger of "Red" agitators. We have been told that they are making every effort to foment strikes, hoping they eventually will end in revolution; that the American workingman is becoming infected with the virus of Bolshevism; that he is already turning Bolshevik, as evidenced by recent strikes of great magnitude. For these reasons The Literary Digest was determined to find the views of the workers themselves. We accordingly sent a letter to hundreds of labor-leaders throughout the country, and in order to make no mistake about it, we did not merely ask if the workers disliked or disapproved the "Red" agitators-we asked if they approved their deportation. In plain language, should they be kicked out of the country?

A comprehensive summary of the 526 replies received is given in THE LITERARY DIGEST for March 20th. It will prove astounding reading to those who have ventured to doubt the loyalty of the American workingman. The article is well illustrated with pertinent cartoons.
